Healthy Diet Healthy Ocean is an exhibition pack developed for Education for Sustainable Development. The education resource aims to raise secondary school students' awareness and understanding of environmental impacts of consuming seafood commonly available in Hong Kong and South China and to inspire the students to adopt sustainable consumption and lifestyles.

A. INTRODUCTION

The exhibition pack was specially designed to raise secondary school students' concern about the environmental impacts of consuming seafood. The exhibition pack includes:

1. Exhibition Set

The set contains 15 full colour panels in A1 size (83 cm x 58 cm). It is available in either English or Chinese version. The topics depicted in the panels include the environmental impacts when harvesting seafood such as overfishing, marine habitat destruction and accidental by-catch. Consumption of seafood in a sustainable and environmentally sound manner is also illustrated.

2. Teachers' Guide (hard and soft copies)

With four ready-to-use student activities, the guide supports teachers to run pre-activity to familiarize students with the issue before reading the panel. Moreover, the suggested post-activities assist teachers to access the learning outcome of the students after reading the panel. There are also two information sheets to provide further information on the contents of the exhibition panel. A selected glossary is provided to facilitate students' interpretation while reading the panel.

B. EDUCATION APPROACH

All the contents of the Healthy Diet Healthy Ocean are presented in a clear and vivid style to motivate students in learning about the issues. The artwork and design are created by professional illustrators and designers.
